The Grandview Museum will engage people of all ages in experiencing the joy of lifetime learning by maximizing opportunities for discovery. To make this possible, we will need to strengthen our core base of operations and tell our story in new and exciting ways. We want to ensure that we continue building on our current level of success, remain relevant and responsive to our community, and pave the way for the Grandview's future through residents understanding our past.

Our present efforts focus on turn of the century 1900-1930 displays from Grandview's past.

Goals

Engage children in discovering Grandview's past.

Involve middle school and high school students in developing interactive exhibits.

Enlist residents, through the Grandview Historical Society, in working together to build museum exhibits.

To display artifacts in captivating settings.

To build interactive displays that involve residents in lifetime learning.

To provide factual information on Grandview's past.
